Monday, November 2, 2015, 3:00-4:00 pm, Hinckley Caucus Room, 260 OSH
Eat, Drink & Learn about the U.S. Supreme Court & Law School at Willamette University, Salem, Oregon

Enjoy free snacks and drinks and experience a mock law school class, and a discussion about law school applications in general and Willamette University College of Law in particular.

Willamette University College of Law Professor Jeff Dobbins will offer a 40-minute class on The U.S. Supreme Court: Last Term, Next Term, and Terms to Come. We will then have time for discussion about recent cases at the U.S. Supreme Court, and have an opportunity to ask questions about the Supreme Court, about law school applications generally, and about life at Willamette Law in particular. Willamette University College of Law is located in Salem, Oregon, just across the street from the Oregon State Legislature and Supreme Court. Its unique location makes it a highly respected center for those planning careers in law and government, as well as for training in all areas of the law. Willamette Law was first in the Northwest for job placement for the class of 2014 (full time, long term JD required / preferred jobs).

Professor Dobbins is an Associate Professor of Law at Willamette. After graduating from law school, he clerked for the U.S. Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit and then, in 1995-1996, he was law clerk to Senior Associate Justice John Paul Stevens on the U.S. Supreme Court. After clerking, he worked for the Appellate Section of the Environment Division at the U.S. Department of Justice, representing the U.S. in appellate matters involving environmental and natural resource issues throughout the country. In 2002, he returned to Portland, and worked in the Portland Litigation Group of Seattle's Perkins Coie LLP. In 2006, he began full-time work as a professor at Willamette, where he teaches administrative law, federal jurisdiction, civil procedure, and appellate process. He is also Executive Director of the Oregon Law Commission, the state's official law reform body.

New LSAT Registration Dates and Late Fee Policies for Repeat Examinees

Students are always advised to check the LSAC web site www.lsac.org for the most current information on LSAT test dates, deadlines, and refund policies. There have been some recent changes in registration deadlines necessitated by legal obligations in regard to testing accommodations. These changes leave little time for students receiving scores from October and December tests to determine if a repeat is desired and register without a late fee. See this message below from LSAC regarding October test takers who wish to repeat in December:

Please note this important clarification of LSAC’s policy on the refund of the additional fee associated with late test registrations. LSAC will honor requests for refunds of the additional late registration fee ($90) from candidates who chose not to register by the regular registration deadline for the December LSAT because they needed time to consider their options after receiving their scores from the October test. Candidates who took the October 2015 test and have a valid score will have until November 3, 2015 to register for the December 2015 test. Unfortunately, we are unable to waive the late fee upon registration; therefore, eligible candidates must submit a written request for a refund of the late fee within 4 days after the November 3 late registration deadline. Refunds will not be issued to those who were absent, cancelled their score, or were dismissed from the test. Requests should be emailed to LSACrefunds@LSAC.org and should include “Late Fee Refund” in the subject line.

Additionally, candidates who registered by the regular registration deadline for the December LSAT after their October score was released, but subsequently decided they do not want to take the December test, will be eligible for a full test registration fee refund if they cancel their registration by November 3, 2015. Eligible candidates must submit a written request for a refund of the registration fee within 4 days after the November 3 late registration deadline. Refunds will not be issued to those who were absent, cancelled their score, or were dismissed from the October test. Requests should be emailed to LSACrefunds@LSAC.org and should include “Late Fee Refund” in the subject line.
